Immigrant Baby Boom Costs Over £1 Billion

BUILDING new schools for the "immigrant baby boom" could cost more than £1 billion, researchers found.

More than 50,000 extra places will be needed at primary schools for the children of parents born outside the UK.

In five years they will boost primary school entry in England and Wales to its highest level for 16 years.

Research by think-tank Migrationwatch UK found an estimated £1 billion will be needed for 270 new schools to educate the youngsters, as well £200 million a year to run them. MigrationWatch UK said:

"This research illustrates how uncontrolled immigration is directly affecting ordinary families."

"The government have clearly failed to plan for the consequences of the mass immigration they have permitted.

The British National Party says that if this is the case with schooling, it will also be the case for housing, health care and other essential services and the British taxpayer will be the one footing bill.

Mayor Charged Over Underwear Theft

IAN Stafford, 58, Mayor of Preesall in Lancashire, was charged by Lancashire Police with three counts of burglary.

Female residents in the seaside town called in police after their underwear kept disappearing from their homes.

A Lancashire police spokesman said: 'Ian Stafford has been charged with three counts of burglary in a dwelling in connection with incidents at addresses in Preesall, Poulton-le-Fylde and Stalmine between January 1 and June 26 2009.'

A spokesman for the Town Council said that as a result of Mr Stafford's arrest on suspicion of burglary the councillor had stood down as Mayor and a fellow councillor has taken over the chain of office.

The BNP says this is just another example of declining moral values.

SICKENING: Megrahi receives a 'heros' welcome when he returns to his native Libya

CONSPIRACY, cover-up and double dealing! Doesn't that just sum up the British Government's involvement in the release of the convicted Lockerbie bomber Abdelbaset al-Megrahi, from jail in Scotland to receive a hero's welcome in Libya.

Gordon Brown has tried to claim that the Government had no involvement in his release, but the Prime Minister is being economical with the truth.

Documents, made available under the Freedom of Information Act, show that Downing Street invested large amounts of political capital in its attempt to secure Libyan oil contracts for Shell and BP including using Foreign Secretary David Miliband and the former Labour leader Lord Kinnock in negotiations.

Even Jack Straw, the Justice Secretary, has admitted that the need to secure oil contracts with Libya was behind the decision to release al-Megrahi.

He said that it was decided in 2007 to drop plans to exclude the bomber from a prisoner transfer agreement (PTA) with Libya after lobbying by oil companies.

Yet Brown has said that al-Megrahi's release had nothing to do with oil and was solely motivated by the desire to bring

Comment by Nick Griffin MEP

Libya back into the international fold after the country agreed to abandon its programme of weapons of mass destruction.

Either way it provides little comfort to the families of the 270 people killed when the Pan Am flight was brought down over Lockerbie in 1988. They were already unhappy that al-Megrahi, who has prostate cancer, was freed on the basis that he had only three months left to live, a prognosis delivered by three doctors who were paid for by Col Gaddafi's Government.

The Lockerbie families are not the only ones dismayed at the Government's shady deals with Libya. Victims of the IRA's terror campaign which used Semtex explosives provided by Libya, have been told that the Prime Minister will not intervene on their behalf in the campaign for compensation from the Gaddafi regime because of "trade considerations and Libya's co-operation in the battle against extremism."

Armed Forces minister Bill Rammell, when he was the Middle East minister, wrote to Jonathan Gamesh who was injured in the 1996 Docklands bombing, confirming that oil contracts were a factor in the Government's decision not to lobby for the compensation.

"Libya is now a vital partner in guaranteeing a secure energy future for the UK and is also a key partner in the fight against terrorism," he admitted.

It also appears that Gordon Brown is even prepared to sacrifice the lives of our servicemen and compromise on democracy in order to secure partners in the fight against terrorism.

The return of the corrupt regime of Hamid Karzai to power in Afghanistan last month bears witness to this. Never has there been such systematic vote-rigging in an election overseen by international election observers... apparently it is now acceptable to turn a blind eye to widescale election fraud if it's adjudged by those in power to benefit the fight against terrorism.

She wanted to make sexually explicit images or films of children legal unless there was evidence that the subject had been harmed.

When she made the official submission, she was a senior figure in a disgusting organisation that wanted the age of consent to be lowered to 14 and incest decriminalised.

The group known as the National Council for Civil Liberties also defended self-confessed paedophiles in the press and allowed them to attend its meetings.

Harman became legal officer for the NCCL, now known as Liberty. Another member of NCCL at the time was former health secretary Patricia Hewitt who held the post of general secretary!

Among the groups affiliated to NCCL were the Paedophile Information Exchange and Paedophile Action for Liberation, whose members argued openly for the abolition of the age of consent.

The British National Party thinks that NCCL or any other groups that exist to legalise paedophilia and assist the monsters that prey on children should be outlawed.

Those who are members of groups like the NCCL should never be allowed to be in the care of children or hold public office let alone ever be able to sit on a committee for the welfare of children. This is just another reason why Labour is the wrong choice for this country.

THE BRITISH NATIONAL PARTY RESPONSE

The British National Party believes that any softening of the laws on child porn or any lowering of the age of consent is simply a move toward legitimising paedophilia.

Once the barriers between normal, healthy sexual relationships are broken down it is a slippery slope towards a world with no morals what-so-ever.

To suggest, as Harman effectively has, that paedophiles should be allowed to collect depraved images of children as long as there was no proof that the child was not 'physically harmed' is sick beyond belief.

The British National Party believes that the perverted monsters who prey on young children should have no rights. They should not be treated with dignity or respect but as what they are - the most vile creatures in our society.

We would strengthen laws to protect children and institute 'Sarah's Law' allowing parents to know if convicted sex offenders were at large in their communities.

The Commission for Equality and Human Rights (CEHR) has stepped up its assault on the British National Party. The case now lies before the courts - should the British National Party be allowed to retain its membership policy which currently is only open to those of ethnic British descent.

In a world of double standards where the National Black Police Association (NBPA) and numerous other high profile groups exist for the sole benefit of non-indigenous ethnic groups, it is clear that this assault on the BNP is also an assault on the British people and their right to organise and define themselves as an ethnic group.

WHY NOW THOUGH?

The British National Party has been in existence since 1982, a whole 27 years. It is only now that the powers that be have chosen to challenge our right to exist in this way. It is no coincidence that the CEHR have chosen to make their move after our party entered the mainstream by winning European Parliamentary seats.

This is just political 'sour grapes'. As Labour's grip on the country begins to slip and the BNP has begun to win at the ballot box the Establishment have resorted to underhand tactics.

Their message is clear; anyone standing in their way will be silenced one way or another.

ONE RULE FOR ONE, ONE RULE FOR ANOTHER

In contrast with their legal assault on the BNP you can see just how far they are willing to go to pander to minority communities. The plan to release dozens of convicted Islamic extremists back onto our streets is already underway and can be read about on page 6. Whilst we are told there is no place for a party for indigenous Brits, there is always a place for militant Islam in Labour's Britain.

This injustice will not break the BNP. No matter what happens we will continue to grow and continue to hurt Labour and the Establishment where it counts - at the ballot box. The important thing is the BNP carries on, because no other party or group have what it takes to stand up to the crooks in Westminster. In a way it's a compliment, as when our enemies try this hard to silence us, we must be doing something very right!

POLICE SPEND £70,000 A DAY ON TRANSLATION

GUESS WHO'S A CRIMINAL

SUSSEX Police is dealing with the growing number of foreign criminals and foreign victims of crime by arming officers with 'Guess Who' style picture cards to beat the language barrier.

Last year the bill for interpreters for Sussex police was £102,000 - a huge figure considering the ethnic make-up of the area and an indication that truly nowhere is safe from the problems of immigration.

Now all its officers will be equipped with more than a dozen of the cards, which include descriptions of offenders' appearances.

If the trial is deemed to be 'successful' then the picture cards will be rolled out to all Britain's 140,000 police officers.

OVER £25 million was wasted by police forces across England and Wales last year to deal with foreign criminals or help victims and witnesses who cannot speak English.

This figure represents a rise of almost 75% on spending since 2004 and is further evidence of the impact immigration has had on public services.

The increase has also come over the period since the EU expanded in to Eastern Europe which has resulted in not only a flood of migrant workers but also a flood of Eastern European gangsters and criminals.

The Metropolitan Police alone spent £12.5 million, according to figures. Martin Tiplady, the Met's director of human resources, l predicted the bill could rise to £20 million by 2012 due to the growing population in the capital.

This reveals one more hidden cost of the failure to control immigration numbers under this Government.

This huge sum of money could have been used to put a massive 500 extra officers on the street for a whole year.

The British National Party is the only party speaking out against the huge costs of immigration at every level of our society.

Not only does immigration have a huge impact on crime but it also places a huge extra burden on the taxpayer who has to fork out for the special treatment needed to deal with these criminals.

Bausch & Lomb Factory In Livingston To Close

BAUSCH and Lomb, eye care specialists, are set to close their plant in Livingston, West Lothian, which produces contact lenses.

The closure will take place over the next 20 months resulting in 500 job losses.

Bausch and Lomb gave just one hours notice the workers' union before announcing the closure and the resulting job cuts.

The firm said it planned to shift contact lens production to Waterford in Ireland and to Rochester in New York.

Scottish Finance Secretary John Swinney met Bausch & Lomb bosses. Speaking after the meeting, Mr Swinney said it had not been possible to agree any alternative proposal with the firm which would save the factory.

With more job losses every month the recession shows few signs of easing up as what is left of Britain's manufacturing base shrinks even further.

A British National Party government would do more to attract inward investment and protect jobs for British workers.

Romanian Workers To Enjoy More 'Rights'

ROMANIAN workers in Britain will enjoy more rights in the job market as legal changes will soon come into force.

The legal changes relate to the couple's status (husband, wife) and the status of under-21s and over-21s still under the care of the Romanians who currently work in Britain.

Such persons will no longer have to apply for a work permit if the main family member already works in the UK.

This effectively means that any Romanian working in Britain can bring his family and dependents into the country and they will be granted the same working rights as British workers.

The BNP say this is just another blow to the already besieged British workforce. At a time of record unemployment it is pure madness to grant the right of foreign nationals to come here and compete for our jobs.

UNISON STAB MEMBERS IN THE BACK OVER PENSIONS

UNISON are set to slash final salary pensions in a move that will shock and disgust its members.

Senior officials at Unison are working on a series of cuts after the stock market crash left its pension scheme floundering with a deficit of over £120 million.

The move has shown up the union's two-faced approach as it is currently fighting a high-profile campaign against cuts to final salary pension schemes in the public sector.

Last year the union staged two days' strike action to protect the final salary schemes of local government workers - now they are guilty of the same thing.

Unison officials have privately accused their bosses of "sheer hypocrisy" for considering cuts to the pensions of the union's 1,400 staff.

The deficit in Unison's pension scheme is understood to have doubled from £58 million at the end of last year to an estimated £120 million today.

Rumours have circulated that Unison even considered scrapping its final salary scheme altogether in favour of system based on average career earnings.

Maybe Unison could have avoided this disastrous turn of events if their officials had spent more time keeping their own house in order rather than meddling in the democratic system and trying to interfere with the BNP's European election campaign.

There is an alternative to Unison and the other out-of-touch unions - Solidarity, the British workers' union. Visit their website at www.solidaritytradeunion.net.

London Mosque Has Twenty Year History of Extremism

A LONDON mosque has been named as having a 20-year history as a recruiting ground for extremists.

The Queen's Road mosque in Walthamstow was frequented by the leader of the airline gang that was convicted recently of attempting to blow up seven transatlantic flights.

Abdulla Ahmed Ali used the mosque, which is controlled by the ultra-orthodox Tablighi Jamaat sect, to meet associates.

Two decades ago, the same mosque was hosting talks by followers of Omar Bakri Mohammed, one of the first Islamic clerics in Britain to preach jihad.

His followers included two Britons responsible for a suicide bomb attack on Tel Aviv in 2003.

The BNP has long warned that mosques in Britain are being funded by extremists and used as terrorist recruitment centres.

DOZENS of convicted Islamic terrorists are already back out on the streets after being freed early from jail.

Again, the long suffering British taxpayer will be footing the multi-million pound bill to keep tabs on the dangerous fanatics.

Twenty have already been

Jobless Total Hits 14-year High

OVERALL jobless totals are at their highest since May 1995. The unemployment rate is now 7.9%, up 0.7% on the previous three months and the highest since November 1996. The number of economically inactive people also rose to its highest point since ONS records began in 1971, at 7.99 million.

Unemployment has now risen by 743,000 over the year as a whole and looks on course to pass the three million mark next year as the impact of the recession feeds through to rising dole queues.

Whilst unemployment carries on rising, why do Labour let migrant workers continue to flood in? The BNP says enough is enough, British jobs for British Workers!

OUT IN THREE: Ali Beheshti, imprisoned for firebombing the home of a publisher of a book about Mohammed

DOZENS of convicted Islamic terrorists are already back out on the streets after being freed early from jail.

Again, the long suffering British taxpayer will be footing the multi-million pound bill to keep tabs on the dangerous fanatics.

Twenty have already been released and are free to roam the streets with a further 75 extremists due to be set free over the next few years.

Amongst these radicals are Islamic extremists locked up for offences including planning to murder British soldiers both here and abroad, attending terror training camps overseas and helping suicide bombers.

However, because of the threat they pose to the safety and welfare of Britain, police and intelligence services will have to mount a huge surveillance operation to ensure that they do not plot further atrocities.

This poses the question, if these fanatics still pose such a high risk to our national security, then why are they being released? These extremists have no allegiance to Britain or the British.

At least four of the 20 released recently are said to pose a high risk to the public, requiring 24-hour supervision by police and intelligence agents.

Rather than 24 hour surveillance they should be deported to their country of origin where they can practice their fanatical Islamism at a safe distance from the British public.

Since 1999, at least 150 men have been convicted of terrorist offences, with 120 linked to al-Qaeda.

The British National Party has no qualms in saying that these individuals have no place in Britain. They are extremists who have plotted and in some cases executed terrorism against the British people.

Amongst those freed already are five Birmingham-based Muslims who were part of a gang led by Parvis Khan, convicted of masterminding a plot to behead a British soldier.

Whilst the Labour party keep on banging the drum about a need for a 'war on terror' in the Middle East, they wilfully ignore the growing terrorist threat here in the UK. A problem that actually threatens British lives, and with this new initiative, they have just made it a lot, lot worse.

YORKSHIRE & THE HUMBER MEP ANDREW BRONS

I WAS delighted to be able to lend my support to a campaign to keep trains running on a rural line in North Lincolnshire.

I was asked for help after Northern Rail announced cuts in services on the Barton Line to Cleethorpes which will take in the stops of New Clee, Thornton Abbey and Barrow Haven.

Northern Rail claims that the cuts are just for a 'trial period' but supporters of the railway believe it's the end of the line for these stations once passengers are forced to find an alternative method of transport.

The Barton Line is a predominantly rural railway for which the British taxpayer pays Northern Rail a subsidy to run trains. Hence it should be the duty of the company to provide a service that stops at ALL of the stations on the line, including the small village stations.

Northern Rail claims that the closure of these stations will result in faster journey times but I have no doubt that there's an ulterior motive in this move.

The company is more interested in maximising profits rather than serving the community and once trains no longer stop at stations to pick up passengers the viability of the whole route comes into question because a number of journey opportunities have been removed.

Fewer journey opportunities will mean fewer passengers which

WHERE WE STAND

CRIME: A crack-down on crime with many more 'Bobbies on the Beat'. Much tougher treatment of criminals, including the return of capital punishment for child killers and terrorists. Zero tolerance for drug-dealers and violent thugs.

IMMIGRATION: An end to immigration and bogus asylum seekers flooding Britain. Use the £billions wasted in foreign aid to fund 'Homeward Bound' schemes to encourage immigrants to return to their land of ethnic origin.

INDUSTRY: British ownership and control of British industry and resources, including the mass media. Protection of British jobs and industry by selective exclusion of foreign manufactured goods from the British market.

HEALTH: We will use the vast sums of money now wasted on funding our membership of the European Union for the restoration of an effective national health service and proactive measures to produce a healthier population in the first place.

EUROPEAN UNION: British withdrawal from the European Union to restore Britain's freedom. We will trade with Europe where it benefits Britain, but want no political ties or monetary union.

EDUCATION: A return to traditional methods of education, with stronger discipline in the classroom and an end to 'trendy' teaching methods which have failed our children so badly.

ENVIRONMENT: A healthy environment for a healthy people - the protection of our countryside. A ban on greenfield-site house building except in exceptional cases of genuine local need, an end to field trials of GM crops, and the restoration of our 200 mile fishing limit.

Fewer journey opportunities will mean fewer passengers which will make it possible to declare that no one is interested in using the line and therefore it will have to be closed down. Such scenarios are a tried and tested method which has been used by railway companies in the past to 'streamline' services.

Talking of ulterior motives, there was blatant example of such manipulation in the European Parliament last month.

My initial response when I read the text of a resolution about combatting forest fires was to support it. But later, after further investigation, I came across a typical EU scam which intended to use a natural humane response to a terrible tragedy to push for further European integration. In fact during the debate I was able to make my first speech in the parliament and this is what I said:

I wanted to give a One Minute Speech to the European Parliament on migrant workers from the Third World taking the jobs of European workers. I would have said:

"There is a serious gap in employment law - one that is covered neither by EU law nor the law of member states.

"Non-EU workers employed by ferry companies who have less than five years legal residence in the EU do not have to be paid the minimum wage of the country in which their employer is based.

"Some ferry companies have been employing Third World workers for a fraction of the minimum wage. This has led to citizens of member states of the EU losing their jobs and being

He praised the work of the European Union in breaking down national borders to allow the free flow of people and then went on to warn that open borders was creating some opposition and that nationalism had to be resisted."

This attack on nationalism was supported by German MEP Martin Schultz, who is leader of the Socialist Group.

He even claimed that "nationalism always leads to war".

I particularly wanted to respond to this but was deliberately ignored by the speaker. I would have said:

"Martin Schulz said that Nationalism always leads to war. However, it is not Nationalism that leads inevitably to war but Imperialism.

Unfortunately I was not one of the lucky thirty-nine MEPs chosen to speak. It was a similar story when I tried to give a response to the President of the European Parliament the following day.

"That Imperialism might well be Nationalist Imperialism such as that of Hitler.

"However, it might equally be the Socialist Imperialism of Stalin.

"More recently we have seen how the Capitalist Imperialism of Bush and Blair has led to war.

"Lastly it could even be the Liberal Imperialism of the European Union which will eventually lead to war."

This month I have a week working in the constituency and then a further three weeks in Brussels attending committee and group meetings as well as two parliamentary sessions.

REMEMBER! It doesn't matter if you don't agree with us on every last policy. Like all the other democratic political parties, the British National Party includes some members who disagree with one or two policies. Just ask yourself whether you agree with more of our policies than those of Labour, the Tories and the Lib-Dems. Most people do, which is why we are the fastest growing political party in Britain today.

Muslim Man Charged Over False BNP Kidnap Claim

A MUSLIM 'community leader' who claimed he was abducted and told to stop prayer meetings in Essex has been charged with perverting the course of justice.

Noor Ramjanally, 36, of Loughton, Essex, has been charged by police on advice from the CPS.

Mr Ramjanally told officers in August that he had been bundled into a car at knife-point by two white men.

He had also fabricated a story that he and his family had endured a campaign of terror at the hands of the British National Party.

Mr Ramjanally has been released on police bail and is due before magistrates in Harlow.

In reality the BNP had simply put out a leaflet in his area warning about the growing Islamification of Britain.

COST OF RAIL TRAVEL TO INCREASE BY UP TO 143%

THE NIGHTMARE of the Tory and Labour Party privatisation of British Rail has hit home once again with the announcement that off-peak rail fares on many lines will rise by as much as 143 percent.

The increases, announced by railway-owning companies such as Stagecoach (which made pre-tax profits of £196.4 million last year), will mean that commuters, already struggling in the recession, will be forced to seek alternative methods of transport.

This in turn is set to increase pressure on Britain's already overcrowded and congested road network. This makes a mockery of Tory/Labour policies which have claimed to want to reduce the number of cars on the road and thereby "save the environment."

Some examples of the latest fare hikes include an increase on the 8.16am Market Harborough to St Pancras service from £37.50 to £92, the Kettering to St Pancras service from £36.50 to £82, and the Wellingborough to St Pancras service from £35.50 to £78.

The increases will also be felt on many routes into London from the West Country, where fares will increase by an average of 20 percent from Sunday onwards.

The privatisation of British Rail, which is the direct cause of the leapfrogging in fares, was first launched in 1993 by the Conservative Party government. The Railways Act, introduced by John Major's Conservative government, allowed for the entire network to be broken up and sold off.

The process was fundamentally flawed, and the head of the Swiss Federal Railways, widely regarded as one of the best railways in the world - is on record as saying that the "whole idea of separating track from train operations in this way is fundamentally misconceived, being based on the model of air transport, where the infrastructure, engineering and operational considerations are entirely different."

He also said, the "rail/wheel interface is an integral entity at the heart of what makes railways function, and hence the worst possible point at which to make a split, especially on an intensively-worked but multifunctional network such as Britain's."

The biggest problem with the privatisation process has, of course, been the issue of profit.

When run as a state enterprise, the focus was on delivery and British Rail served all parts of the country at a price which made rail travel affordable. Run today on a profit basis, rail travel is both unaffordable and service has been cut to many dozens of areas deemed "unprofitable to service."

Commuters often negatively compare the privatised rail services of Britain with the state owned services of France (SNCF), Austria (ÖBB) and Germany (DB) which together have some of the fastest, most modern, affordable n and extensive train services in the world.

Although the Labour Party claimed they would reverse the catastrophic piecemeal sell-off of British Rail, they never did. Instead, they sold off even more of Britain's infrastructure than what the Tories ever dared.

The British National Party has undertaken to restore all of this nation's national assets to its people, and will end the disgraceful selling off of institutions which have been built with taxpayers' money.

THE CARDBOARD CUT-OUT KILLER

A CARDBOARD cut out of a "British granny on Texas' death row" was erected on the vacant fourth plinth in Trafalgar Square on September 10th by liberal do-gooders. They have also appealed to the British Prime Minister to ask the US President to free her.

The truth is that the woman in question, Linda Carty, isn't ethnically British, and has never lived in Britain or even happened to be born here. She is a West Indian who moved to the US long ago. Her only connection with this country is that she was born on the Caribbean island of Anguilla in 1958, which at the time of her crime bestowed on her and 14,000 of her fellow, 90% ethnic African, islanders a piece of paper called a British Overseas Territories Passport. Since then upgraded to full British citizenship.

She was convicted of organising the kidnapping and murder in 2001 of a 25-year-old white mother so she could steal her three day old baby. The country's most senior law officer has egg on her face and her career now hangs in the balance. She claims she was 'duped' into thinking Loloahi Tapui, a 27-year-old Tongan, was in the country legally.

The law states that: "Those who unknowingly employ illegal migrants through less than diligent recruitment and employment practices can face penalties of up to £10,000 per worker."

The British National Party says that this is typical of the ruling elite. Whilst they often pay lip service to preventing illegal immigration they are the cause of it.

It will be interesting to see exactly what comes of this case and

The West Indian Carty's defence that she was framed by Jamaican drug gangs because she had informed on them was not believed by the jury, for some reason! Convicted of murder she was in our view rightly sentenced to death, by the humane and painless method of lethal injection.

This convicted cold-blooded murderess has no real connection with Britain and her case is a matter entirely for the Texas courts, in which she has been dragging out appeals playing for time unsuccessfully for years. It does however highlight yet another anomaly of Britain's Citizenship laws, which despite much spin about "clamping down" still give British citizenship to large numbers of people all over the world with no least connection by blood or even birth to our country.

In this case the British Overseas Territories Act of 2002 is to blame. This lumped the ethnically British Falkland Islanders, the largely British-descended Pitcairn Islanders, and the ethnically European and fiercely-pro-British Gibraltarians, in with a menagerie of ethnic Africans on an unprepossessing collection of Caribbean tax havens and money-laundering centres such as the Turks and Caicos and British Virgin Islands, Bermuda and Anguilla. Together with sundry military and scientific bases such as Akrotiri on Cyprus, Ascension Island, and the British Antarctic Territory. British citizenship was handed out willy-nilly to everyone everywhere on this miscellaneous rag-bag of residues of the once proud British Empire.

This should be scrapped, the British people involved confirmed as full UK citizens and their land annexed and given appropriate representation in the British Parliament. The British base areas, if not otherwise covered by treaties, should be formally annexed also. Whilst the rag bag of sordid Caribbean international are criminal boltholes and tax havens should be declared independent of Britain and their inhabitants stripped of any claim on British passports. Those inhabitants, such as the convicted murderess Carty, are nothing to do with us and their fate is a matter for their own people. In Carty's case also the people of Texas in which she committed her vile crime, as well as the white family she bereaved and the white baby she orphaned.

Finally, isn't it time we restored the dignity of Trafalgar Square and put some appropriate statue on the empty fourth plinth? Replacing the zoo of nudists, crackpots and cranks who have been perching on it with a suitable statue of a British hero or heroine. We have, after all, plenty to choose from.

Baroness Scotland, the Attorney General, has been placed under investigation by the Home Office after she admitted employing an illegal immigrant as her housekeeper.

The country's most senior law officer has egg on her face and her career now hangs in the balance. She claims she was 'duped' into thinking Loloahi Tapui, a 27-year-old Tongan, was in the country legally.

The law states that: "Those who unknowingly employ illegal migrants through less than diligent recruitment and employment practices can face penalties of up to £10,000 per worker."

The British National Party says that this is typical of the ruling elite. Whilst they often pay lip service to preventing illegal immigration they are the cause of it.

It will be interesting to see exactly what comes of this case and whether it will be a case of 'one rule for them and one for the rest of us' as Labour try to sweep another indiscretion under the carpet.

This case is also reminiscent of a similar scandal where the then Home Secretary David Blunkett was caught trying to use his position to fast track the immigration application of his lover's foreign nanny.

DISGRACED FORMER OFFICIAL PLEADS GUILTY of her fellow, 90% ethnic African, islanders a piece of paper called a British Overseas Territories Passport. Since then upgraded to full British citizenship.

She was convicted of organising the kidnapping and murder in 2001 of a 25-year-old white mother so she could steal her three day old baby. The mother was beaten and gagged, then a bag put over head and she was locked in a car boot, where she suffocated slowly and painfully to death. The West Indian Carty's defence that she was framed by Jamaican drug gangs because she had informed on them was not believed by the jury, for some reason! Convicted of murder she was in our view rightly sentenced to death, by the humane and painless method of lethal injection.

This convicted cold-blooded murderess has no real connection with Britain and her case is a matter entirely for the Texas courts, in which she has been dragging out appeals playing for time unsuccessfully for years. It does however highlight yet another anomaly of Britain's Citizenship laws, which despite much spin about "clamping down" still give British citizenship to large numbers of people all over the world with no least connection by blood or even birth to our country.

In this case the British Overseas Territories Act of 2002 is to blame. This lumped the ethnically British Falkland Islanders, the largely British-descended Pitcairn Islanders, and the ethnically European and fiercely-pro-British Gibraltarians, in with a menagerie of ethnic Africans on an unprepossessing collection of Caribbean tax havens and money-laundering centres such as the Turks and Caicos and British Virgin Islands, Bermuda and Anguilla. Together with sundry military and scientific bases such as Akrotiri on Cyprus, Ascension Island, and the British Antarctic Territory. British citizenship was handed out willy-nilly to everyone everywhere on this miscellaneous rag-bag of residues of the once proud British Empire.

This should be scrapped, the British people involved confirmed as full UK citizens and their land annexed and given appropriate representation in the British Parliament. The British base areas, if not otherwise covered by treaties, should be formally annexed also. Whilst the rag bag of sordid Caribbean international are criminal boltholes and tax havens should be declared independent of Britain and their inhabitants stripped of any claim on British passports. Those inhabitants, such as the convicted murderess Carty, are nothing to do with us and their fate is a matter for their own people. In Carty's case also the people of Texas in which she committed her vile crime, as well as the white family she bereaved and the white baby she orphaned.

Finally, isn't it time we restored the dignity of Trafalgar Square and put some appropriate statue on the empty fourth plinth? DISGRACED FORMER OFFICIAL PLEADS GUILTY TO LEAKING BNP MEMBERSHIP LIST

THE DISGRACED former deputy head of security for the British National Party, Matt Single, has pleaded guilty to leaking the party's membership list on the Internet last year.

Mr Single pleaded guilty and was sentenced this morning to a derisory £300 fine by a court in Nottingham after accepting full responsibility for the leaking of the list, shifting blame from his wife, Sadie Graham, who is another disgraced former official.

Evidence in court showed that police had found the incriminating evidence which showed that the couple had put the list on the Internet in two pen drives. The pen drives had been wrapped in plastic wrap and hidden inside a cereal box in their kitchen. Police had found the drives while making a thorough search of their house.

Police had also recovered a laptop belonging to the pair which they had used to upload the list onto the Internet.

The court heard that there were 160 complaints from people who had been threatened or had had their property vandalised as a result of the leaked list.

By pleading guilty and taking the blame upon himself, Mr Single managed to prevent the charges being confirmed against his wife. However, Mr Single never personally had possession of the membership list, as it was only ever entrusted to Miss Graham in her role as group development officer. Therefore, Miss Graham must have given the list to Mr Single.

Sentencing Mr Single, the judge said he was "frustrated" at the fact that he could not fine Mr Single more. Mr Single is currently on job seekers' allowance, and this restricted the amount by which he could be fined. The £300 fine was comprised of £200 for the criminal offence and £100 towards the n prosecution and investigation costs, which, the judge said, amounted to many thousands of pounds.

Mr Single and Miss Graham were expelled from the party in 2007 for being part of a well orchestrated attempt to sabotage the BNP. Their co-conspirators in that intrigue included former BNP webmaster Steve Blake and former administration officer Kenny Smith and his wife, Nicholla Ritchie.

This group also used the membership list to send out fake membership bulletins attacking the party and set up various websites to the same end. All of these attempts failed, and with the criminal conviction of Mr Single, the door can now be closed on this treacherous affair.

Council Spends £222,000 on Ethnic Body Which Bars Whites

THE BRITISH National Party in Scotland has exposed Dumfries and Galloway Council for spending nearly a quarter of a million pounds on an ethnic organisation which bars white British people from becoming full members.

The shocking news was revealed by Dumfries and Galloway BNP organiser Ian Murphy in a press release after he obtained the figures following a Freedom of Information request.

"Almost £222,000 has been given to Dumfries and Galloway Multicultural Association which shows the lack of regard for Britain's native population held at all levels of government," Mr Murphy told BNP News.

"The whole thing reeks of hypocrisy and anti-British bias," Mr Murphy continued. "At a time when our party is facing a government-inspired legal challenge to our indigenous membership criteria, we find out that £222,000 of taxpayers' money has been given to an organisation whose constitution reserves membership for ethnic minorities."

The information shows that over the past few years some £5,899 has been spent on citizenship ceremonies, £4,193 on telephone translation services and £13,650

Mr Murphy added: "It's disgusting that a quarter-million pounds of taxpayers' money is being squandered on careless and wasteful politically correct spending in a region which has one of the smallest ethnic populations in the country.

"Frankly it's a disgrace that the needs of alien minorities, who have paid less into the system, are put ahead of the welfare of our own children. This is just a portent of what is to follow for Britain's next generation who are already treated like second class citizens in their own country," he said.

"It's an example of why voters are turning to the British National Party and it shows why it is essential that we gain further support before the next general election where we can offer a real alternative," Mr Murphy said.

CRUSHED BRITISH CHRISTIAN GRAVESTONES SWEEP ASIDE BY THE MUSLIM COLONISERS

THE BLOODLESS genocide and ethnic cleansing of the British people and culture continues apace with the latest example being the ripping up of a century old Christian cemetery to make way for a mosque in Manchester.

The grave desecrations, being carried out with a large Komatsu earthmover in the graveyard of the St John the Apostle and Evangelist church at the corner of Holmfirth Street and St John's Road, is part of the re-opening of this nineteenth century church as the Dar-ul-Ulum Qadria Jilania "Islamic Centre."

A sign on the door says clearly that the "Islamic Centre" is already "open for prayer" - showing that by Islamic centre the colonisers actually mean mosque.

The conversion of this church (founded in 1845 on a site donated by Sir J. W. H. Anson) into a mosque has been made possible by the displacement of the local indigenous British population by waves of Third World immigration into Manchester.

As this policy gathered pace under successive Tory and Labour governments, the numbers of Third World colonisers grew to the point where they have now totally displaced the indigenous population.

As there were no more white British people in the local area, the Grade II listed status church closed down - only now to be re-opened as a mosque.

This church - formerly the largest Church of England parish in Longsight, was the only one in the area with a graveyard.

These Christian British graves - the only remnant of the now ethnically cleansed British people in the area - are obviously offensive to the Muslim colonisers, who have brought in the earthmoving machine to smash up the gravestones which are being literally crushed to rubble.

St John the Apostle and Evangelist church is a real time history lesson of what will happen to Britain unless the insane multicultural Lib/Lab/Con genocidal policies of mass Third World immigration are not only brought to an end, but reversed.

The British National Party is the only party which speaks up on this critical issue which directly affects the very future existence of this nation - and is also the only party which has the policies to stop this extermination of our folk and nation.

The British voters will soon be faced with a choice between their continued extermination at the hands of the Lib/Lab/Con ethnic cleansing party, or their survival as a free and independent indigenous people with the British National Party.

Brutal Kidnap and Torture Gang Found Guilty

FACES OF EVIL

THE MEN pictured above are part of an eleven strong gang who kidnapped and tortured their victims whilst demanding ransoms from their friends and families.

During the trial the jury were told the gang extorted over £20,000 in cash from one of the victim's brothers, but he called police when he received demands for a further £70,000.

- Kumpati and Paul Wigan, 29, from Catford, south east London, both pleaded guilty to false imprisonment and blackmail in an earlier hearing.

BARCLAYS BOSS GETS £7.4 MILLION BONUS

BOB DIAMOND, the boss of Barclays investment banking arm, was handed a £7.4m bonus at the end of last year.

Diamond pocketed the bonus as part of a £17.5m payout that made him the best-paid board director of a British bank.

His 2008 pay takes him close to £80m in the last four years, with another huge payout in prospect this year, despite a sharp fall in the value of the bank and the investments he managed in the last year of the reward scheme.

The British National Party is disgusted that the men and women who have wrecked our economy can still profit so much when the rest of the country is on its knees and so many people are losing their homes.

Five New Regional Organisers Appointed in Scotland

THE BRITISH National Party presence in Scotland has been ratcheted up another gear with the appointment of five additional new organisers, Scottish leader Gary Raikes has announced.

Speaking after a meeting to appoint the new organisers in Aberdeen, Mr Raikes said the new officials were the result of a recent push to recruit officials in Scotland.

"We are proud to report that the latest batch of officials means that over half of all area authorities in Scotland now have an official BNP presence," he said.

"Each official has received a copy of the BNP in Scotland Local Area organisers' pack which has ensured that they understand how the party works, what they need to do to hold meetings, contest elections and what needs to be done to promote the British National Party in their regions," Mr Raikes continued.

BRITISH LEGION AGREES TO TAKE BNP MEMBER'S MONEY AFTER ALL

THE ROYAL British Legion has announced that it will accept money donated to it by a British National Party member's fundraising efforts after previously announcing to great media fanfare that it would not.

BNP Member Rachel Firth has spent 24 hours inside a cardboard box this weekend to highlight the plight of ex-service personnel who are forced to sleep rough.

By doing so, she has raised money which she will now divide equally between the BNP and the RBL.

Ms Firth told BNP News that she was happy to learn that the Royal British Legion had reversed their decision.

"My intention was never to make the BNP 'look good' on a sponsorship form next to the Royal British Legion. The British National Party does not need a reason to look good," she said. "It does that all by itself.

"I have only been a member of the BNP for a few months now and have seen more honest, decent, caring folk in those few months than I have seen in my lifetime," Ms Firth said.

"This experience has given me more determination and courage to do all I can for the BNP," she concluded.

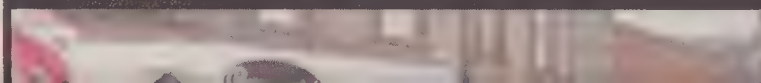

Earlier this month, the RBL said it would not accept the money because she planned to give half of

A spokesman said the RBL had originally thought the donation was being made on a political basis - and the money could therefore not be accepted.

"The situation is different with Rachel," the RBL spokesman said. "She is an individual raising funds for her favoured causes and wants to split those funds between the causes. We have no problem with this," he said, adding that they had spoken to Ms Firth and explained the confusion.

"We are proud to report that the latest batch of officials means that over half of all area authorities in Scotland now have an official BNP presence," he said.

"Each official has received a copy of the BNP in Scotland Local Area organisers' pack which has ensured that they understand how the party works, what they need to do to hold meetings, contest elections and what needs to be done to promote the British National Party in their regions," Mr Raikes continued.

"I have enjoyed meeting members from across Scotland over recent weeks and have been impressed with their enthusiasm and commitment. I would like to thank them all for standing up and taking on these demanding roles to insure our continuing growth. There is now a real feeling that success is within our grasp," Mr Raikes concluded.

Ms Firth told BNP News that she was happy to learn that the Royal British Legion had reversed their decision.

"My intention was never to make the BNP 'look good' on a sponsorship form next to the Royal British Legion. The British National Party does not need a reason to look good," she said. "It does that all by itself.

"It is just that the two causes are close to my heart. My father and late grandfather both served their country.

"I have only been a member of the BNP for a few months now and have seen more honest, decent, caring folk in those few months than I have seen in my lifetime," Ms Firth said.

"This experience has given me more determination and courage to do all I can for the BNP," she concluded.

ELECTION CAMPAIGNING WEEKEND FOR COUNTY DURHAM BNP

COUNTY Durham British National Party held a wide range of election-related activities in September in Bishop Auckland and South Tyneside respectively, reports our North East correspondent .

The BNP's prospective parliamentary candidate for the Bishop Auckland constituency, Adam Walker, took a team to Bishop Auckland on Saturday to campaign for the forthcoming general election. Many hundreds of leaflets were handed out at their stall.

"We've been continually campaigning in the constituency since the end of June, which has brought positive feedback from the public," Mr Walker said. "Many visitors to the stall are pleased to hear that they will be able to vote BNP in the general election."

The increasing death toll of British troops in Afghanistan made for a good reception for an excellent leaflet designed by Pete Molloy entitled No more loss of British blood.

"The British public have had enough of Britain's involvement in Afghanistan, which is what the leaflet is about," Mr Walker said. The following day, at the request of Les Lovelock, the BNP candidate for the Westoe ward in South Tyneside, Adam Walker took a team of five activists to help canvass the ward.

"I'm really grateful that the County Durham lads took time out of their campaigning to help me with my campaign over the last few weeks," Mr Lovelock said. This is the first time the BNP has stood in the ward and the response very encouraging.

BNP LAUNCH TELFORD GROUP

LAST MONTH saw the first official British National Party meeting in Telford, Shropshire, attended by 45 people specially invited to inaugurate the new unit.

West Midlands election officer James Whittall revealed that without any local organisation, the

"This is an impressive result when it is considered that we only put out the one election leaflet in the area," Mr Whittall said.

"That compares to an average of eight and a half percent average for the rest of the West Midlands where we did canvass and leaflet."

The next speaker was West Midlands training organiser Richard Lumby who dealt with some practical issues in making a group popular amongst local people by, amongst other things, assisting residents with issues which other parties do not wish to touch during which local attendees were able to ask questions about the functioning of a local group and how best to go about setting one up.

Black Country BNP Has Hat-Trick in Wednesbury

THE EVER hard-working activists from Black Country British National Party made it a hat-trick in Wednesbury with their third appearance in a row in that town in as many weeks.

"Rather than show up for a week and then move the table-top democracy programme to another town, we thought it prudent to try out a new tactic and stay put for a while," Black Country correspondent John Salvage said.

"The tactic worked very well. This time the donations rolled in and public support was more open and enthusiastic than ever.

"Large numbers of the public stopped to pick up literature and information packs and to talk with the smartly dressed team. It was also significant that a wide cross-section of society was represented in the inquirers, from students to housewives and businessmen.

"After a three hour session the team had almost run out of material and information packs," Mr Salvage continued. "The weather was baking, and the BNP team retired to the Black Country BNP headquarters in nearby Tipton for a post-outreach discussion and much-deserved refreshments."

LINCOLNSHIRE COASTAL GROUP MAKES WAVES WITH SUCCESSFUL MEETING!

THE LINCOLNSHIRE Coastal Group, the fastest growing group in Lincolnshire, has held a successful late summer members' meeting at a prestige location on the Lincolnshire coastal strip.

Well attended by around 50 members and supporters, group organiser Robert Ashton successfully continued the group's recruitment drive with confirmed new members joining at the meeting. In tandem with this a very successful collection of £385 was raised towards group funds.

Additionally, local contact Len Jones was congratulated on assisting with the recruitment of 20 new members in the seaside town of Mablethorpe where issues such as the detection of illegal of immigrant workers and the group's activity were featured in a recent issue of Voice of Freedom.

The group has additionally enrolled its first Lifetime Member with Fundholder Cllr. Trevor Richardson presenting a cheque for £395 to confirm his lifetime membership application.

To complement the raffle and the distribution of information packs and leaflets recent Gold Member Duncan Allenby won the auction item of a BNP rosette, signed by Chairman Nick Griffin MEP.

The pro-active group are continuing with an energetic recruitment drive with weekly leafleting progressing along the coastal strip producing soaring enquiry levels and unparalleled new membership levels.

THE PERSECUTION OF PATRIOTS

The people that human rights activists so ardently defend are the very people that intend to remove human rights as we understand them. Human rights activists blatantly ignore an erosion of the basic human right to free speech that is occurring, thereby allowing that it is acceptable to silence those with whom they do not agree.

In Muslim countries human rights do not apply, yet anyone that criticises the immigration of massive numbers of Muslims is prosecuted by laws that equate criticism of religion with racism. To be denied the right to criticise a religion and its consequences, or even to state that you have ethnic preferences, is an infringement of the basic human right to free speech.

Patriots are being persecuted for attempting to defend their own cultural integrity.

When our fallen soldiers were bought home from Afghanistan, they travel in a procession along route 401 called "The Highway of Heroes". Canadians of all ethnic groups including our Canadians of the Muslim faith stand and salute our fallen boys and girls with great solemnity along the freeways of our great Canadian land; we are after all Canadians, not Americans, not French, not English, but Canadians, and this is the crux of the matter.

In Britain you are being forced to integrate, forced to accept a multi-cultural society, and this is WRONG! But by the same token at this stage in your great historical progression we have got to admit that we are a mixed race society, AND WE ARE! And we have many Brits of different black, brown or ethnic backgrounds WHO ARE BRITISH AND THINK BRITISH. I grew up and worked with them in England and they are like us, they think like us. THEY ARE US!

Now I have met several black Brits and Brits of mixed race origin here in Canada whilst working on construction in the Oil Fields of Alberta. I instantly felt at home with these guys when giving out the daily job orders (as a construction superintendent).

These men instantly snapped to, and knew exactly what I wanted, I didn't have to explain, or tell them why, they just knew what to do, and bought the job in on time. They like me had the same back ground and culture and the same understanding as do most Canadians who are of British descent.

In Canada we are a mixed race society, and as you know, we speak English and French with pride. There are also portions of our society where immigrants will speak in their native tongue.

In Britain you are being forced to integrate, forced to accept a multi-cultural society, and this is WRONG! MOB RULE

So it is the mob that is now deciding what event can or can not take place.

When Birmingham Police told the General Teaching Council to postpone the hearing of British National Party teacher Adam Walker because the event would cause unrest in the community, it was letting the mob dictate the agenda.

What other events will have to be postponed in future because there might be 'unrest in the community'? Maybe the opening of a new church?

Of course Birmingham Police in their quest for political correctness have left off two vital words from their statement explaining why they have taken such an unprecedented step in interfering in a General Teaching Council meeting. They should have said "ethnic minority" community.

It has been reported on the that it is the intention of the French authorities to close the shanti town, called 'The Jungle' in woodlands near Calais.

Thousands of Africans, Asians and Arabs - all young men - are at the channel port just waiting for the opportunity to smuggle themselves onto a ferry and come to Britain.

London's Great Parks

THE FIRST London Park came into existence at Richmond in around 1272 and since that time they have become a much loved feature of the London landscape: an oasis of calm from where to escape the noise and bustle of city life.

Yet take a walk through an inner city park today and one can see something sinister is happening to the trees. They no longer look in the best of health and in fact many of them are dying, and no, it is not due to some new kind of virus but to a different kind of threat: they are being mauled and destroyed by weapon dogs such as pit bulls and bull terriers.

Dogs have savaged trees from Battersea to Peckham and in other inner city places where the people who are replacing us live. The attacks are encouraged to strengthen the dogs' jaws, and on one housing estate in Peckham more than half of its semi-matured trees have been killed by dogs.

A while ago London ITN reported that a wounded fighting dog had been taken to the top balcony of a block of flats and just thrown over. It was then just they have become a much loved feature of the London landscape: an oasis of calm from where to escape the noise and bustle of city life.

Yet take a walk through an inner city park today and one can see something sinister is happening to the trees. They no longer look in the best of health and in fact many of them are dying, and no, it is not due to some new kind of virus but to a different kind of threat: they are being mauled and destroyed by weapon dogs such as pit bulls and bull terriers.

Dogs have savaged trees from Battersea to Peckham and in other inner city places where the people who are replacing us live. The attacks are encouraged to strengthen the dogs' jaws, and on one housing estate in Peckham more than half of its semi-matured trees have been killed by dogs.

A while ago London ITN reported that a wounded fighting dog had been taken to the top balcony of a block of flats and just thrown over. It was then just unceremoniously dumped into a bin, obviously all to avoid having to contact a vet, with the accompanying probing questions.

We were once known as a nation of animal lovers but those who are replacing us just don't appear to share our moral values. When all the animal loving people have gone will these islands become known for their animal cruelty?

Certainly Peckham does not appear to be the place it once was, for it is there where William Blake was said to have seen a vision of angels in a tree on Peckham Rye with bright angelic wings bespangling every branch. No sign of angels today only the snarling jaws of the fighting dog goaded on by its vicious master, and even the mural dedicated to William Blake has been vandalised and part of it stolen brick by brick.

BORIS URGES LONDONERS TO FAST DURING RAMADAN TO 'UNDERSTAND' MUSLIMS

JOHNSON spoke during a visit to the East London Mosque and London Muslim Centre claiming Muslims in the capital were "challenging traditional stereotypes".

Johnson said "That's why I urge people, particularly during Ramadan, to find out more about Islam, increase your understanding and learning, even fast for a day break your fast at the local mosque. I would be very surprised if you didn't find that you share more in common than you thought.

"Muslims are at the heart of every aspect of society. Their contribution is something that all Londoners benefit from. Muslim police officers, doctors, scientists and teachers are an essential part of the fabric of London."

Boris included the hundreds of Muslims in that statement who violently clashed with police outside the Mosque in Harrow on the anniversary of the September 11th attacks.

Police said they were attacked with bricks and bottles outside the Mosque where a number of arrests were made for possession of weapons, all this in their holy
